

What We Do

Background

The courses offered by Family Enrichment make use of the case-study method, which is commonly found in business- and law-school classrooms. The case studies center the discussion of each class on real situations with which participants can identify. They are rich in complex family situations that help bring to the forefront varies aspects within the life of the family that are essential for proper, productive relationships among family members: husband and wife, parents and children, sibling relationships, immediate family with extended family and friends.

Throughout the course, participants will learn the case-study method and how to apply it to family life.

While the case studies are instructive, it is the wisdom brought to bear on them from the experience of the participating couples, crystallized in the general session by a professional moderator, that often provides the greatest insights.

Who We Are

Mission

Family Enrichment is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to the support of the family as the natural environment for the children's education and promotes the exchange of family experiences.

As the first and primary educators of their children, it is incumbent upon fathers and mothers to do the best job they can in raising their children. This takes constant effort and study. The courses offered by St. Louis Family Enrichment serve to help parents carry out this great responsibility.

The courses encourage parents to educate their young children as a whole: nurturing the psychological, intellectual and cultural aspects of each child.

We are affiliated with the International Federation for Family Development www.iffd.org. Our mission is to strengthen the family and support husbands and wives in an atmosphere of friendship. More information can also be found at www.familyenrichmentusa.org.

First Steps Course

For parents with children ages 0-7

First Steps Course

About

This course is offered for parents with children from birth to 7 years of age.

Infants and toddlers have a large capacity for assimilation and responsiveness to their surroundings making the daily realities encountered in family life a natural starting point to promote learning and to begin developing some basic habits..

As children between 4 and 7 begin to develop their personality and reach the age of reason the focus of the parents should be to help them grow in human virtues. Again, the unique family setting within our homes is ideal for this training.
